

PRAYER RESOURCES

Here are some resources to help you in your prayer life during this challenging time:

Stations of the Cross

There is a short version of the Stations of the Cross available in the church. You are invited to use it to follow Jesus through His Passion. If you choose to use it, please take it with you.

Magnificat

Magnificat is offering complimentary access to their online prayer resource during the pandemic. The resource includes Morning Prayer, the day's Mass readings, a meditation, a saint of the day, Evening Prayer and Prayer at Night. Visit us.magnificat.net/free or scan the code with your phone to access this free resource.

Give Us This Day

Liturgical Press is offering complimentary access to their Give Us This Day resource during the pandemic. The resource supports daily prayer with profiles of holy people, readings and prayers for Mass, reflection on scripture, Morning Prayer and Evening Prayer. Visit giveusthisday.org/Digital or scan the code with your phone to access this resource.

The Word Among Us

The Word Among Us has unlocked all material on their magazine's website, including daily meditations and daily Mass readings in conjunction with the USCCB. Visit wau.org/meditations/ or scan the code with your phone to access this resource.

SJTW Blog

Each week, we will share blog posts on our website to help you reflect on the readings and to guide your prayerlife. These will include the Sunday readings, Father's homily and the Prayers of the Faithful. We'll post these each Friday at theworker.org/blog.

Archdiocese of Dubuque

The archdiocese has a page dedicated to updates on the current situation. You can also access Archbishop Jackels's livestream of Mass each Sunday at 9:00am at dbqarch.org/coronavirus.

USCCB

The United States Conference of Catholic Bishops has a page of resources and prayers and to support prayer and engagement during these difficult days. Find them at usccb.org/coronavirus

If you use any of the printed resources or if you grab a bulletin, please take them with you to prevent the spread of germs.
